Who is responsible for repaying you?

The Notes are not guaranteed by any other member of the CCB Group.

How you can get your money out early

You cannot redeem the Notes before their maturity date unless there is an event of default in respect of the Notes (see section 4 of this document (Key Features of the Notes) for further details).

CCB NZ does not intend to quote these Notes on a market licensed in New Zealand and there is no other established market for trading them. This means that you may not be able to sell your Notes before the end of their term.

How the Notes rank for repayment

If CCB NZ goes into liquidation:

- You will be repaid only after CCB NZ's secured creditors and creditors preferred by law (for example, Inland Revenue and employees).
- You will be repaid at the same time and to the same extent as all other unsecured unsubordinated creditors of CCB NZ (including other holders of Notes).
- You will be repaid before CCB NZ's subordinated creditors (if any) and shareholders.

You should also read section 4 of this document (Key Features of the Notes).

No security

The Notes are unsecured.

Key risks affecting this investment

Investments in debt securities have risks. A key risk is that CCB NZ does not meet its commitments to repay you or pay you interest (credit risk). Section 5 of this document (Risks of Investing) discusses the main factors that give rise to the risk. You should consider if the credit risk of these debt securities is suitable for you.

The interest rate for these Notes should also reflect the degree of credit risk. In general, higher returns are demanded by investors from businesses with higher risk of defaulting on their commitments. You need to decide whether the offer is fair. CCB NZ considers that the most significant risk factors are:

- As a bank, CCB NZ is susceptible to risks that its customers do not repay their loans (credit risk), including risks associated with any concentration in its loan portfolio arising as the CCB Group continues to expand its business across CCB NZ and CCB Branch.
- There is an enhanced regulatory focus on banks in New Zealand, including a broad range of current regulatory proposals relating to or potentially affecting registered banks (including the current regulatory capital review). While CCB NZ and CCB Branch do not currently expect such proposals to have a particular or disproportionate impact on their operations, they will need to be considered as they are finalised, may create new regulatory or compliance risks to be managed, and will be a significant focus of management attention. CCB NZ is also exposed to the risks of litigation, compliance and regulatory proceedings, as it and the CCB Group are subject to financial service laws, regulations, administrative actions and policies in New Zealand and China.

This summary does not cover all of the risks of investing in the Notes. You should also read section 5 of this document (Risks of Investing) and section 4 of this document (Key Features of the Notes).

What is the Notes' credit rating?

A credit rating is an independent opinion of the capability and willingness of an entity to repay its debts (in other words, its creditworthiness). It is not a guarantee that the financial product being offered is a safe investment. A credit rating should be considered alongside all other relevant information when making an investment decision.

The programme under which the Notes are offered has been rated by S&P Global Ratings (“S&P Global”) and Moody’s Investors Service (“Moody’s”) and Fitch Ratings (“Fitch”). S&P Global gives ratings from AAA to C, Moody’s gives ratings from Aaa to Ca and Fitch gives ratings from AAA to C.

A credit rating is not a recommendation to buy, sell or hold Notes.
